Do You Know?

ISU's origins began in 1901 when the "Academy of Idaho" was created. Blossoming school spirit and loyalty required the selection of a team name. In 1906, an unknown person decided on the Bantams.

A bantam is essentially a miniature chicken! Bantam is an umbrella term for a variety of small chicken breeds. They are about a quarter of the size of a standard chicken. True bantams have no larger counterpart to their breed, other bantams are selectively bred miniature versions of standard breeds.

Apparently not thrilled with the Bantam name, the Academy's baseball team decided to call themselves the "Tigers" in 1908.
